

In Bill Lamb's eyes, Charlestown was a very special place that required little intervention. Bill gave decades of service and architectural knowledge freely to our community to protect the heritage that was passed to us and to ensure that the inevitable change fit seamlessly into the fabric of this historic neighborhood.

I will miss bumping into Bill as he walked our streets monitoring change, taking in our history and enjoying his community. I honor him for the incredible gift he bestowed to us: the preservation of this beautiful historic neighborhood for future generations. He will be remembered with love and gratitude, always.
